

BLOSSOM WITH RAIN DROPS

Edited Photo:

In this photo, I brought the color out and also made the rain drops a bit more colorful and clear as well. In order to do this, I added a photo filter, exposure, color balance, hue/saturation, and curve line. I made the raindrops the main part of the photo by giving them color and bringing them out more.

Original Photo:

The original photo was taken with half sun light, up close to get the rain drops right after a rain storm basically. Was edited to some degree to make it look better. The flower also pulls away from the rain drops.

CHRISTMAS

Original Photo:

The above photo was taken inside with the Christmas lights along the crown molding around the room. The focus was the Christmas tree. It is off to the side of the overall picture. While there is a lot going on, that is what happens at Christmas with platforms though.

Edited Photo:

For this I tried to bring the tree into the spotlight. To do that I added a photo filter to allow the tree lights to shine the tree as a different color to bring more attention to the tree. I also adjusted the hue/saturation, curves to adjust lighting, and exposure to bring out some of the colors. I also brought the light down since there was too much light in the original photo. I also used a blue filter to make it feel more like Christmas as well.

AUTUMN COLORS

Original Photo:

The light is from that of a sunrise. I was about 50 feet away or so. The tree is off to the left in this one. The lighting is pretty good. The color is also amazing. The focus of the image is the tree.

Edited Photo:

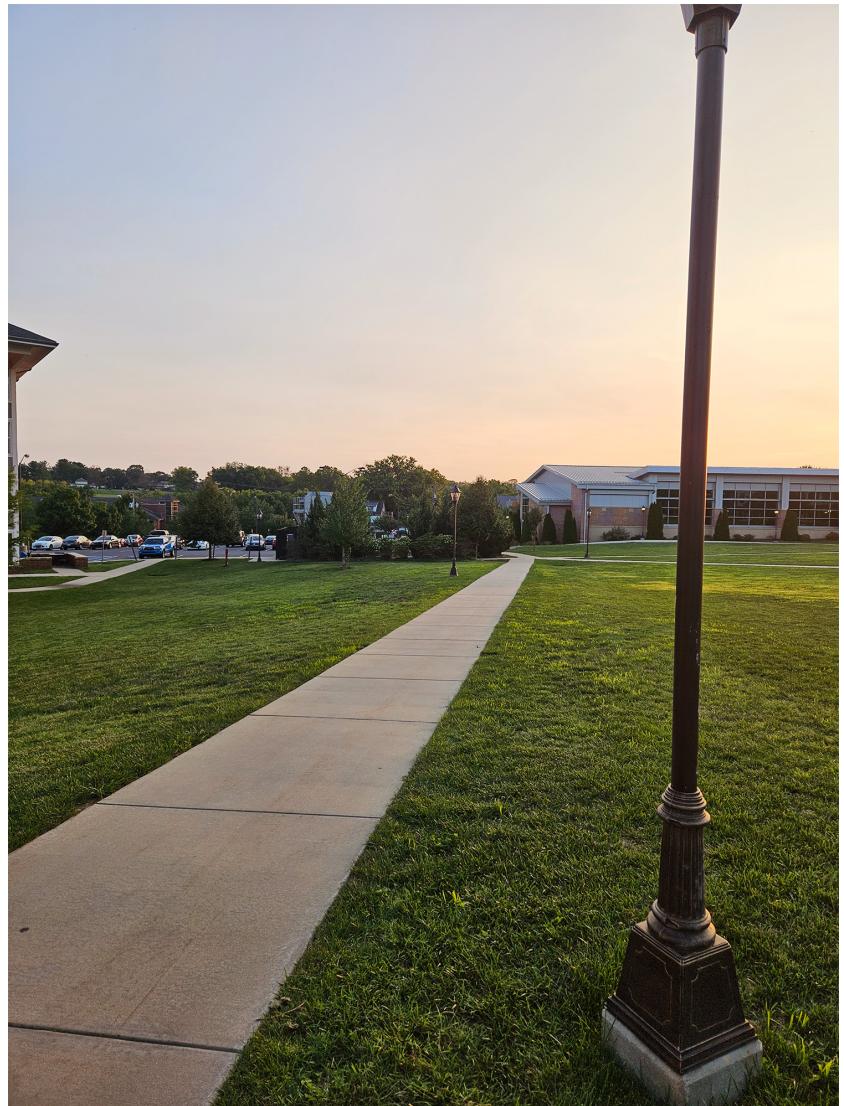

The light of this photo I did adjust by editing the curves to brink some more light to the other side. I adjusted the brightness/contrast to help bring out the color of the tree more

SIDEWALK OF WONDER

Original Photo:

This is the original photo which I took for the sunset. Then decided for the editing to focus on the trees and the land as well as the building. This photo was completely unedited.

Edited Photo:

For this photo I focused on the land and building. For this one I just adjusted the color balance, curves, and brightness/contrast. I changed these to bring out the different shades of grass. The sunset in the background is also a bit more visible and clear with more layers of colors being able to be seen. This also brought the edges of the sidewalk out more as well so it was not so blended.

